
THE “LUCKY YOU” FACTOR

– Monika Muranyi

Why is it that some people appear to be born under a lucky star, while others always struggle through life with drama, challenges and difficulty? Can we really create our own reality and turn a life of bad luck to one of a continuous good luck? Want to know more and how?

The “lucky you” factor can be explained by understanding synchronicity. Synchronicity and co-creation is part of the system of benevolent design that is available to all of us. Synchronicity guides you to meet the people you are supposed to meet, have the situations unfold that you are supposed to have, and your life moves faster because of it.

Throughout my life there have been many occasions where others have said, “Oh Monika, you are so lucky!” My usual reply is always around a central theme and statement, such as: “Yes, I am!” But secretly I understand that luck had nothing to do with it. My perceived “luck” has been created from my intent and consistent focus, and by following the synchronicities that I pay attention to. So what exactly is this “lucky factor,” and how can we make it part of our everyday reality?

In simple terms, we merely need to connect to the benevolent system that is available to every Human Being on the planet. The difficulty for most people is that their beliefs often prevent them from seeing the structure of synchronicity. Very few actually believe that we can influence seeming outside forces to manifest our reality. My introduction to synchronicity has been via the channelled messages of Kryon, as given by Lee Carroll (the original Kryon channel). Below is a partial extract of what Kryon reveals about the system:

“There is a system that my partner has taught in these meetings for years. It’s a system we have mentioned in countless messages, and we’ve never really dedicated an entire channel to it in the way we are doing today.

This is a system that most of you don’t even know how to use, yet some of you use it all the time. You just don’t know when you’re using it, since it’s not intuitive to what you have learned.

This message is going to be about the way synchronicity works, and we’ll sub-title it, “The Demise of the Bell-shaped Curve”! [Kryon laugh] When something happens to you that is good, your friends around you may say, “What a lucky person you are! What are the chances that this would happen to you?” When you go into a difficult situation, something that is common to humanity like surgery, and you come out with results that are positive beyond expectations, your friends may again exclaim, “What a lucky person you are!” Then somehow you continue to be “lucky” over and over.

Perhaps you go someplace and you accidentally meet just the right person who knows someone else who has just the right information that you were looking for. This leads you to end up with exactly what you wanted. What are the chances of this? Your friends are amazed! “What an incredibly lucky person you are!” That’s all a Human can say, since there simply is no other explanation in their reality. The idea that you might actually be bending the bell-shaped curve of average and, by chance, using an available system will never occur to them.

Humans do not see the structure of synchronicity. It is not part of any kind of system that they use. They believe it is simply chance. The only structure that is used is goal setting, planning, and forward-looking systems. Only through these does the Human believe they can help control their lives. Indeed, this is the only way a Human can achieve things in a linear fashion so that they will arrive at a pre-set goal. In this linear system, no matter what kind of process you have studied that will get you from A to B, there must be a goal. Some of you take those goals and you will paste them to the refrigerator so you’ll see it every day. This is a linear process for a linear Human Being and is well known.

What if I told you that there is a process that is not linear and has only conceptual goals? A conceptual goal is one that says, “Dear God, put me in the right place even though I don’t know where it is. Dear God, when you do it, make it comfortable for me and help me to see the sense of it. Make it easy and bring me the right situations and synchronicities to put me in this place I don’t know about.” How about that?

If you told that statement to someone off the street, they would say, “You must be New Age!” They see you as silly and floating around without a goal, hoping the Universe will somehow show you the way. They laugh. But the Human who begins to use synchronicity as their life’s path is simply changing the box of belief to include something that is available to all but is not in 3D. In fact, some of you have been using this process a very long time, but you’re just not aware of it...

...Synchronicity can put you in places that are beautiful. It can save your life, and often does. It voids all the karmic attributes that have pushed and pulled you around forever. It changes the way people think about you because you change. It changes the way you think about others because you are put in the places to see who you are. It rearranges that which you believe because you start to have reinforcement of action, and you know that it is working. You can stand tall and tell the others that you have no idea where you are going and you are proud of it! All the while, you are healthier than they are, and you’re happier than they are, and you love people they won’t love. Do you see what I’m saying?

This is a change in perception of life. It’s a change in everything that the Human Being has been taught in 3D, and it’s not “let go and let God”. It is a partnership – a new arrangement that’s conceptual and demands work on your part, demands it.

Expect synchronicity, but if it doesn’t come when you think it might, don’t be disappointed. It simply wasn’t supposed to! Humans are funny. Look at the phrases that many in your culture use. They know about this! “Well, I guess it was supposed to happen.” They have no idea! Yes!! [Kryon laugh] Or, “The universe had a message for me.” They have no idea, that’s exactly right! Exactly right.

So I’ve just given you the mechanics of it and it’s beautiful and it’s just for you. Benevolent, helpful Information is being broadcast all the time, even from the non-believing souls. Their “God part” is active and knows that you are hearing them. It helps the old soul to go from A to B. More than that, it helps you find processes and principles and people who can make a difference on the planet. This is what's new."

Do you understand the message from Kryon? Is it possible that you can change your life? What do you wish to change? Your Higher-Self, your soul and God understands what you want. Perhaps it's time to acknowledge the God inside and be willing to listen and wait for the synchronicity you desire and don't be surprised if you hear someone say "Wow, you are such a lucky person!"

*The extract above is from a Kryon live channelling, "Synchronicity – the way it works," given in Asheville, North Carolina on August 24, 2013. The entire channelled message can be read at: http://www.kryon.com/CHAN%202013/k_channel13_synchronicity.html

